New Law In Effect.

Tuesday the law placing the express business under the provisions of the interstate commerce law went into effect and will make some changes. Heretofore big shippers have been favored by having matter sent by express in many cases without payment of charges, now all this "deadhead" matter is cut out and everything must be paid for. Another requirement is that everything must be weighed and shipped at its real weight, and not at a low estimate. Both shipper and express company is held responsible for violation of this law.

James Fee Dead.

Mr. James Fee, aged 83 years, one of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, died yesterday morning at his home on Main street with the infirmities of old age. He was born in County Galway, Ireland, on July 3, 1823, and came to this country in 1854. He first settled in Baltimore, afterwards moving to Iowa, coming to Paris about 45 years ago. He entered the grocery business here in 1867, and has been successfully engaged in it up to the time of his death. He was our oldest retail merchant.

He is survived by one son, Mr. A. J. Fee, being the only child, living of eight that was born to him.

By strict attention to business Mr. Fee amassed a fortune. He enlisted in the Federal army here under Capt. Matt Clay and made a gallant soldier for the last three years of the war.

Funeral services will be held at the Catholic church, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Father Cusack. The pall bearers are: James Farrell, S. S. Hays, Geo. Gregory, M. J. Glenn, Martin Doyle and Wm. Lehman.

Bourbon Fair a Great Success.

The Bourbon County Agricultural Society, after an interval of ten years, opened Tuesday with the largest first day crowd in the history of the Bourbon County Fair. On Wednesday, Lexington Day, the attendance was still larger, about three thousand people being present, and on yesterday a still larger crowd was present. The show rings have been especially fine and well filled. The stockmen and exhibitors are all pleased and very complimentary to the beautiful new grounds.

The third day of the old Bourbon fair was a repetition of the success of the two preceding days. Attracted by the contest that was to be waged between Bourbon King, the property of A. G. Jones, of North Middletown, this county, and Star McDonald, the property of Ed Parker, of Georgetown, and entered by Matt Cohen, of Lexington, for supremacy as the best saddle stallion four years old and over, drew a crowd estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000 people. The grand stand was crowded as in olden times, while hundreds were scattered over the grounds.

The day was an ideal one up to 4 o'clock, when a heavy rain put a stop to the program. Interest centered in the contest between the celebrated Bourbon King and Star McDonald.

Both horses were unbeaten in the saddle ring and as stallions have produced premium winners. This was their first clash in this ring, and Wednesday the first time they had ever met in a show ring. After about forty minutes in which both horses were given the most severe tests of speed, the judges awarded the ribbon to Bourbon King amid the cheers from thousands of throats.

The rain came up just as Zingarella was mounting the platform from which the little lady standing on a ball rolls it around a spiral to a height of nearly fifty feet, and then descends while the people look on with breathless silence and admiration.

Likewise the rain prevented Prof. Lafayette, the aeronaut from making his thrilling balloon ascension and parachute leap. The rain will not interfere with today's program, as the ring is so made as to allow the surplus water to quickly run off. The following is yesterday's premium list, the first and second days list can be found on another page:

JACKS AND JENNETS.

Jack 3 years and over, D. R. Ammerman, Cynthia, first, Thos. McClintock & Sons second; Jack 2 years and under 3, J. P. Evans first, J. F. Cook, Lexington, second; jack 1 year and under 2, J. F. Cook first and second; jennet 3 years and over, J. M. Terry first; jennet 2 years and under 3, J. M. Terry first; jennet 1 year and under 2, J. M. Terry.

Sweepstakes—Jack any age, Thos. McClintock & Sons first, J. F. Cook second; jennet any age, J. M. Terry.

Wednesday being Lexington Day our neighbors sent down a delegation of about 500 citizens. Most of them came over the Interurban and were met at the main entrance by Smittie's Military Band and a reception committee, headed by Hon. J. T. Hinton. When formed in line headed by Secretary George A. Bain and a platoon of Lexington police, in charge of Captain Ford and Lieutenant Garrett, they marched around the amphitheatre and into the ring.

Immediately in front of the band stand in the amphitheatre, the Hon. Claude M. Thomas, on behalf of the Society and people of Bourbon county, welcomed the guests in a short speech. He paid an eloquent tribute to the progress and public spirit of the Lexington people and assured them every man, woman and child in Bourbon county were friendly to Lexington and hoped for the success of the Blue Grass Fair.

Secretary George A. Bain responded on behalf of the Lexington and Fayette delegation by saying that the people of Lexington and Fayette county always entertained for the good people of Paris and Bourbon county the kindest feeling, and that while they were here in the interest of the Blue Grass Fair it was a fair not of Lexington, but of the entire Blue Grass section of Kentucky, in which the people of Bourbon were almost as much interested as were the people of Fayette county.

He said he was born and reared in Bourbon, and that forty-six years ago his father and mother were a blushing bride and bridegroom at the Bourbon Fair. He concluded by inviting the good people of Bourbon to come to the Blue Grass Fair and with one accord he was answered, "We'll all be there."

NOTES.

Today and tomorrow will be the two best days and everybody should be on hand.

It is estimated that about 400 children were present the first day of the fair.

The ladies of the Methodist Church who are serving dinner, are doing a good business and are furnishing a dinner that is pleasing everybody.

Conveniences on the grounds are perfect, and every place looks as neat and clean as a private lawn. Ice water in abundance in covered galvanized cans are located at all convenient places.

The band has been moved to the center of the amphitheatre, which is an improvement, as you could not hear the sweet music Smittie is giving from the stand in the center of the ring.

Secretary Chas. Webber is making an ideal secretary, and was wise when he selected John Davis, Jr., as his assistant. They both attend to their duties like veterans in the business, polite and accommodating and never get rattled.

In the ring for the best pony one year old and under two, the blue ribbon was awarded to Master Claude M. Thomas, Jr., son of the Hon. C. M. Thomas. This pony is said to be one of the finest specimens of the Shetland pony ever seen in a show ring.

Among the little folks driving and riding in the Shetland pony rings were: George White Fithian and little sister, Josephine Frances, Mary Mitchell and Turney Clay Douglas Clay, Rogers Moore, Jas. McClure, J. P. Hutchcraft, Jr., and lady, Anna Wilson, Marie Talbot, Clarence Keer, Clarence Barbee, Misses Mappin, Will S. Armsparger, Vasant brothers, Martha Talbot and Matt Bedford.

The defeat of Allie Jones' heretofore unbeaten Bourbon King by Matt Cohen's Star McDonald was a surprise to many. Jones, however, got even by defeating Star McDonald with Bourbon King in another ring. These are two of the greatest show horses in the world. There is a standing offer $8,000 for Bourbon King and one of $6,000 for Star McDonald. Mr. Cohen was once the owner of Bourbon King, having sold him to Mr. Jones for $300 when he was a two year old.

The baby show Wednesday attracted much attention. The prizes were for the handsomest boy baby, ten dollars to the first and five to second choice. Three confirmed but sly bachelors, T. Hart Talbot, Joe Penn and Joe K. Redmon, were picked as judges, and the mothers entering their proud offspring were Mrs. Roy Turner and Mrs. Cassidy, of this city, and Mrs. Henry Caywood, of North Middletown. The decision was in the order named.

The judges in the four year old ring for the best saddle stallion in which Bourbon King won over Star McDonald were Asa Sphar, of Clark, and John T. Woodford, of Montgomery. The decision seemed to meet the approval of a majority of the large crowd that witnessed the contest. These two great horses meet today in two rings, one in morning and one in afternoon. They will also have the celebrated horse, Judge Cantrill, to beat.

An Interesting Decision.

The Supreme Court of Florida recently decided a case which will be of interest in all cities. A citizen of Tampa sued the local water company for $25,000 damages because when his store caught fire, the water pressure was not sufficient to enable the firemen to fight the flames successfully and the building was burned. The water company won in the lower court, but this decision was reversed by the Supreme Court which said the Company had been given extensive franchises and privileges including the right to use the streets for its pipes, the right to charge tolls and regulate the use of water, and had assumed the public duty of furnishing water to extinguish fires and if the Company failed to perform its duty they were liable for any damages that might ensue.

The Corrupt Republican Machine.

Former Republican Congressman Foss has declared war on Senator Lodge and his "corrupt" machine in Massachusetts which he declares should be "annihilated." He says in a letter to Chairman Smith of the Republican State Committee: "The machine has made up the slate for all offices for 12 years in advance. As you have said publicly no man has any chance of political preferment in Massachusetts who will not wear the collar of the political boss of the State. Now I am in for breaking up this sort of thing."

Everywhere there is the same revolt against the Republican state machines and it is one of the good omens for Democracy that honest Republicans are talking plainly and exposing the corruption that exists. How is it in this State and who will be the honest spokesman for reform. We have the machine but it happens to be a Democratic machine. Now let us be as honest as this Republican and break up this Democratic machine. Machines belong the Republican party and the sooner the Democrats of Kentucky find this out the better it will be for the Democratic party.

The Machine Re-united.

Several weeks ago we predicted in the editorial column of this paper that the Frankfort machine would get together and run just as smooth as ever in time to carry out its deep laid plans in November. The rupture in the first place was that Beckham and Haley endorsed McChesney for Auditor and Chinn for Secretary of State while Hager favored Hines and Vreeland respectively for those two offices. Things not looking the best for the Beckham and Haiey gang something would have to be done. Chinn was the first to withdraw from the race. This did not satisfy Hager. On Tuesday McChesney withdrew from the race. This of course settled the falling out between the two main guys of the machine Beckham and Hager. So watch out boys "buck rabbits will be jumping" as sure as you are born in November. How can it be otherwise when Mott Ayres is at the head of the primary committee. He is already getting in his work for the machine from the private letters he has written throughout the State, some of which have been published, which clearly show that this Committee who are supposed to give us a fair primary will give us anything else. The machine will get the best of it at every stage of the game. It remains with the voters to say whether or not we shall remain under machine rule. Let the people give them such a drubbing that they dare not attempt to steal the election.

A Faithful Republican.

"Bill" Chandler is also among the prophets and in remitting his dollar to the Republican Congressional Committee advises that "stand pat" aggregation to "work for reform and Republican victory." Really President Roosevelt ought to revise his determination to kick this faithful one out of his position as head of the Spanish Claims Commission, for from helping cheat Mr. Tilden out of the Presidency down to virtually being called a liar in the railroad rate bill mix up, he has always shown his determination to stand by "the old flag and appropriation," if he could be sure of a fair share of it. Chandler is a typical and faithful Republican and entitled to sit at the table with the best or the worst of them.

Why?

One newspaper dispatch, referring to the indictments brought against the Standard Oil trust by the federal grand jury at Chicago, says: "It did not take the federal grand jury a half day to discover that crime had been committed by the corporation." Yes and it would not take a federal grand jury, instructed by a determined prosecuting attorney, half an hour to discover that crime had been committed by John D. Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers and other persons of flesh and blood. Can any one explain why some of these men have not been indicted.

Does He Believe It?

The St. Louis Globe Democrat, referring to a man more or less prominent in politics for whom it has a very poor opinion, says: "The only place for him is in the bosom of the Democratic party, where they care nothing of what a man thinks, or whether he thinks at all, if he only votes."

This was not a hastily written paragraph, but appears as the concluding lines in a long editorial. Does the editor of the Globe-Democrat really believe the statement thus quoted. If he does, then he is, indeed, a poorly informed man. We rather incline to the opinion that in writing these lines, the Globe-Democrat editor was in the same mood as when he referred to the Republican party as the "party of God and morality."

Common Case.

The Scotchman's disposition to regard his own judgment as the best that can be found is well illustrated in a story once told of the moderator of a Scotch presbytery. This man's opinion differed widely on a certain question relating to church discipline from that of the associates with whom he was ostensibly consulting. At last he said that he would lay the matter before the Lord in prayer and then wait for his guidance. "O Lord," said the moderator fervently and with perfect sincerity of purpose, "O Lord, grant that we may be right in this matter, for thou knowest that we are very decided."

Easing His Conscience.

The Rev. Mr. Goodman (inspecting himself in mirror)—Caroline, I don't really believe I ought to wear this wig. It looks like living a lie. Mrs. Goodman—Bless your heart, Avery, don't let that trouble you. That wig will never fool anybody for one moment.—Chicago Tribune.

Fooled.

Geraldine—You have been ill, haven't you?

Gerald—Yes. I was threatened with brain fever.

The Millionaire's Offense.

"That millionaire yonder has cheated me out of a fortune."

"How? Wouldn't he let you marry his daughter?"

"Worse than that. He never had a daughter."

The first instance of collaboration in English literature was that of the plays written by Beaumont and Fletcher.

Nerve.

"The great requisite for playing cards or the horses," remarked Mr. Everwise, "is nerve."

"Yes," answered young Miss Torkins, "it must take a great deal of nerve to enable a man to come home so often and tell his folks that still further economy will be necessary."—Washington Post.

The only failure a man ought to fear is failure in cleaving to the purpose he sees to be best.—George Eliot.

Little Pitchers.

Willie—Uncle Jack, did you choke on that cake batter ma made yesterday? Rich Old Uncle—Good heavens, no, child! What put such an extraordinary idea into your head? Willie—Why, I heard pa tell ma he made you cough up the dough.—Baltimore American.

Stabbed.

"Whew! That's the first time I ever made a speech. I felt like I had forgotten all I had ever learned."

"You appeared to be talking just as you felt."—Houston Post.

Vitality A-plenty in Monastic Life.

Oh, my friend, you may prate of wasted lives and idleness and the parasites of the church and all that sort of thing, but I fear it is little you know about the vital forces that are feeding and sustaining and strengthening it every hour of the four and twenty.

If I could show you the letters that came to me from that friar in the south of Europe, letters bubbling over with health and happiness and the sweetest resignation, and then show you a photograph of a young man in tinsure and cowl, with the calmest, clearest eyes that ever looked out from under a placid brow; if you could have felt of his knotted biceps and known the grasp of his small but powerful hand and heard the peal of his hearty laughter—for his spirit was bubbling over even there in his serene solitude—you would perhaps begin to understand why the monastic life, in spite of its tranquillity, never stagnates and why the more you contend against the spirit of the religious orders the more they live and thrive.—From "A Fin de Siecle Friar" in National Magazine.

Weighing a Hair.

"To number the hairs of your head is not a very difficult task," said the refiner of the assay office to a friend recently. "A very close approximation can be made by weighing the entire amount of hair on a man's head and then weighing a single hair. The weight of the former divided by that of the latter will, of course, give the desired number. If you will pluck out a hair from your beard I can show you." A long and straggling one was accordingly detached, the refiner putting it on a scale which was inclosed in a glass case and graduated with extreme accuracy. With little weights of aluminum he piled up one arm until an equilibrium was reached. The hair weighed three kilograms. "If you reduce this to figures," said the speaker, "it would require 8,000 hairs to weigh one ounce, and, supposing you have six ounces, you have 48,000 hairs."—New York Herald.

Picking Peanuts.

The seeds of the peanut are planted like beans, and when the vines have come up and the nuts are ready for harvesting the farmer takes a cultivator especially made for that purpose and starts down the long rows. On either side of this cultivator are two long knives which sink into the ground sufficiently to cut the taproot of the vine. The same process is gone through with on the other side of the vine. The main root being thus severed and the ground loosened, the vines are lifted into shocks like corn. They are cured by allowing them to stand in the sun for about ten days, when a colored woman and children are sent into the field to pick the nuts from the vines. An average picker will pick about five bushels a day, for which he is paid at the rate of 10 cents a bushel.

Material For 1,200 Eggs in a Man.

German scientists announce that the material for a man weighing 150 pounds can be found in the whites and yolks of 1,200 hens' eggs. Reduced to a fluid, the average man would yield ninety-eight cubic meters of illuminating gas and hydrogen enough to fill a balloon capable of lifting 155 pounds. The normal human body has in it the iron needed to make seven large nails, the fat for fourteen pounds of candles, the carbon for sixty-four gross of crayons and phosphorus enough for 820,000 matches. Out of it can be obtained, besides, twenty teaspoons of salt, fifty lumps of sugar and forty-two liters of water.

Leading Authority.

"Mister," said the sad faced individual who had sneaked in the big skyscraper, "can I sell you the great 'Encyclopedia of Sporting Events?'"

"Nope," replied the busy man. "We have one encyclopedia of sporting events already."

"That so? Where do you keep it?"

"Why, we try to keep him on that stool over there, addressing envelopes. I mean the office boy, and he is an encyclopedia on everything from a game of skiddoo to the Olympic games."—Chicago News.

Aroused Her Suspicion.

"Mamma," asked the little girl, "has Mr. Brown got heart disease?"

"I don't know, my child. Why do you ask?"

"Well, it says in my new book that faint heart never won fair lady, and when I saw Mrs. Brown I made up my mind that something must be wrong with his."—Toledo Blade.

To Tell Eggs' Sex.

"It is usually possible," said a chicken farmer, "to tell from an egg's look whether it will hatch out a rooster or a hen. The egg that will hatch out a hen is, you see, quite smooth at both ends. The one that will give a rooster is wrinkled at the point. Sometimes this rule fails, but as a general thing it holds good."

He Couldn't Run Off With It.

The freaks were forming a club. The elastic skin man had the chair. "Next in order," said he, "are nominations for treasurer. Has any one?" The wild man of Borneo rose. "I nominate," he said, "the legless wonder."

GOOD for OLD and YOUNG

Full of vigor and frolic the whole day long.
So when Mamma needs more they rush off in high glee,
And shout to the druggist: "Please give it to me!"

Inability to get up brisk and fresh in the morning, lack of appetite, pallor, muddy complexion and poor spirits—these all indicate a disordered stomach and bad digestion—in adults and children, too. They also indicate the urgent need of taking Green's August Flower regularly for a few days.

It's a reliable old remedy for all stomach troubles, never fails to cure indigestion, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and is a natural tonic for body and mind. It's two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

Shavings.

"By the great oncellet!" clucked the old hen, as she cuddled down upon the thirteen eggs, "this nest is made of excelsior. No doubt about it, this is going to be a shaving set."—Watson's Magazine.

'Tis not necessity, but opinion, that makes men miserable, and when we come to be fancy sick there's no cure.

Familiar With His Habits.

Huge Task.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Iowa, but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach." Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. Price 50c.

Mrs. Robert McCreary Drowned.

Mrs. Jessica Newberry McCreary, wife of Robert H. McCreary, son of Senator James B. McCreary, was drowned in Lake Michigan while bathing at Lakeside, Mich., Tuesday. Mrs. McCreary was one of a large bathing party at Lakeside. She went too far out and was caught by the undertow. Her husband, who was also in the water, and Dr. W. S. Harpole, another member of the party, went to her aid, but they, too, were carried under. They battled with the waves and succeeded in towing the woman's body to shore, but she could not be resuscitated. Both men fell exhausted as soon as they reached the beach and it required considerable work to revive them. When Mr. McCreary finally recovered consciousness and learned of the death of his wife he was almost crazed by the shock.

A Sad Case.

An exchange in a neighboring county notes the death of a former prominent citizen who died in the infirmary of that county who was formerly Sheriff, once possessed of a fortune which gradually melted away and who was a gallant soldier of the Confederacy during the war. The saddest commentary on his death is the fact that he has three ablebodied sons and two married daughters still living. Isn't it a serious reflection upon our modern christianity and civilization when the loved ones are permitted to live in such surround- ings and be buried at the expense of the State.

Paris City School Open.

Paris Public Schools opened Monday, September 3rd and adjourned until September 10th on account of the Bourbon Fair. A number of the patrons were present at the opening and they, as well as the pupils, enjoyed the chapel services.

Supt. Chapman, in well chosen words, spoke of the purposes of the Public Schools and of the relation of patrons, pupils and teachers. All seemed pleased and believe that a period of great prosperity is opening for the Paris City Schools.

A full corps of teachers was present and they entered upon their work with enthusiasm.

The new High School Assistant, Prof. W. Lee Dawson A. B. graduate of Western Maryland College has been chosen as a specialist in Latin and judging from the splendid examination he passed before the board composed of Profs. Chapman and Costello no mistake has been made in the selection. More than 300 pupils were enrolled in the various grades.

They sold Monday to Chas. Thompson, of Lexington, five mules, the pick of a bunch of 125 for $1,000.

—The hog is a wonderful animal when you come to sum him all up and is one of the fixed institutions of this country. Some one has wittily described him as a manufacturer of hams, lard, hair brushes, head cheese, tooth brushes, glue, buttons, fats, bacon, sausage and satisfaction. As a condenser, he beats the finest steam machinery. He will put ten bushels of corn into less space than a bushel measure. Corn loaned to a hog is cash at a good investment, safe and at a large interest. He does what the ancient alchemists never succeeded in doing, by converting corn into coin, and thus discover the philosopher's stone.

THE ANCIENT INCAS.

They Knew Neither Idleness Nor Riches Nor Poverty.

The flocks of llamas belonged to the sun and the Inca. It was death to kill one. At certain seasons of the year they were collected from the hills and shorn. Large numbers were sent to supply food for the court and to be used at the religious festivals and sacrifices. Maie llamas only were killed. The wool belonged to the Inca and was stored in the government depots and dealt out according as the people's wants required. In this way they were provided with warm clothing. When they had worked up enough wool into clothing for themselves they were then employed in working up material for the Inca. The distribution of the wool and superintendence of its manufacture were in the hands of officers appointed for the purpose. No one was allowed to be idle. Idleness was a crime and was severely punished.

All the mines belonged to the Inca and were worked for his benefit. The various employments were usually in the hands of a few and became hereditary. What the father was, that the son became. A great part of the agricultural products was stored in granaries scattered up and down the country and was dealt out to the people as required. It will thus be seen that there was no chance for a man to become rich, neither could he become poor. The spirit of speculation had no existence there.—Chambers' Journal.

THE BLACK BALL.

A Clever Scheme That Was Spoiled in the Drawing.

Two young men in a French village were called on to draw for conscription. One only was wanted to complete the number, and of the two who were to draw one was the son of a rich farmer and the other the child of a poor widow.

The farmer ingratiated himself with the superintendent of the ballot and promised him a present if he could find means to prevent his son from going in the army. In order to accomplish this the official put into the urn two black balls instead of one white and one black ball. When the young men came, he said:

"There are two balls, one black and one white, in the urn. He who draws the black one must serve. Your turn is first," pointing to the widow's son.

The latter, suspecting that all was not fair, approached the urn and drew one of the balls, which he immediately swallowed without looking at it.

"Why," said the superintendent, "have you done that?" How are we to know whether you have drawn a black or a white ball?"

"Oh, that's very easy to discover," was the reply. "Let the other now draw. If I have the black, he must necessarily draw the white one."

There was no help for it, and the farmer's son, putting his hand into the urn, drew the remaining ball, which, to the satisfaction of the spectators, was a black one.

Pranks of the Types.

Tom Moore wrote the line, "Had taken up in heaven his position," but the printer made it read, "Had taken up to heaven his physician." In a weekly story paper a love story contained no less than twenty ridiculous errors. Instead of falling into a river, the young lady fell into the river; "bull pup" appeared for "pull up," "nasal" for "natal" and "troubrace" for "trembling." The fair heroine was awfully "hungry" instead of "angry." Her heart was filled with "et ceteras" and not "ecstasies," and when she meant to say "thine" the types made her say, "I am thin, I am wholly thin." A newspaper in telling of a cow cut into halves by a railway train said the cow was cut into calves.

A Cutting Rebuke.

In some parts of Scotland it is customary for a bride to bring a dowry to her husband, no matter how little. One couple who had experienced the strife of wedded bliss for some years were having the usual row, when the husband taunted the lady with the paucity of worldly goods with which she had endowed him.

"Awa!" said he. "When ye marrit me a' ye brought was a cask o' whisky an' the auld Bible."

"Weel, Jock," was the response, "gin ye had paid as muckle attention to the book as ye did tae the whisky, ye would have been a meenister o' the gospel the noo."

Bricks.

There is no building material so durable as well made bricks. In the British museum are bricks taken from the buildings in Nineveh and Babylon which show no signs of decay or disintegration, although the ancients did not burn or bake them; but dried them in the sun. The baths of Caracalla and of Titus in Rome and the Thermae of Diocletian have endured the ravages of time far better than the stone of the Coliseum.

A TURKISH CEMETERY.

"And why do the Osmanli prefer Scutari as a burial place to any other?"

"Because it is there the trumpet of the archangel will be first heard. The true believers who lie at Scutari will first rise to answer it, next the faithful from other parts of the earth, after that the Hebrews and lastly the glaiours who follow other gods."

Thus spoke the grave old turbaned Turk who stood beneath a cypress tree on the slopes of the world famed cemetery of the sea of Marmora.

"All know," he went on in calm, judicial accents, "that when the last days of the world are drawing near the Osmanli will be driven forth from Stamboul by the Frank. Then for a space there will be trouble and turmoil on the earth. All sons of the faithful will fly up to Scutari as a refuge. There they, the living and the dead alike, will await the day of judgment."

With that, thinking it was a hurt to his dignity to parley longer with a glaiour, he gathered his robes about him, saluted majestically and passed slowly away down one of the long, broad avenues leading to the gates of the cemetery, leaving the stranger to wander at his pleasure through that forest of tall tombstones standing erect.

The coup d'oeil is picturesque in the extreme. As far as one can see the long, slender shafts of marble rise beneath the shadow of the massive cypress—the tree of Allah, the Osmanli call it—which points its finger to the sky, while the luxuriant vegetation of the east clusters around the base of the shafts, emphasizing their snowy whiteness and preventing them from being too dazzling to the eye.

Each tomb bears its own decoration. A single leaflet, the drooping petals of a rose or graceful front of fern indicates that a female form lies below. A turban or fez shows that the dead person was a man. Lamps, ostrich eggs, sashes, fringed and colored handkerchiefs of varied hue, all have their own significance, while here and there will be seen some tall stone, sculptured from end to end, its ornamentation in high relief, encircled by a number of smaller ones, which proves that the father of a family—a man of wealth—rests here surrounded by his wives and children. A curved scimitar shows that a man of war reposes there, an anchor marks the sleeping place of a sailor, a wand of office proves that the dead man held some post of command. So on till something is learned of all, even though one may not be able to decipher the fantastic Arabic characters which tell with more detail the history of the dead.

The terms in which the Turk expresses his lamentations are often very pathetic, especially when they refer to the loss of his wife or child.

Here is one, taken from the tomb of a young girl, which effectually combats the common western delusion that the Osmanli believe that women are born without souls or hope of a future life: "The cold blasts of fate caused this nightingale to wing its way to heaven. There it has found its awaited bliss. Zelnab is the name of her who lies below, and for her Lababa, who wrote these lines, offers humble petition. Weep not for her, for though dead she has become a sojourner in the gardens of paradise."—London Spectator.

Tolstol as an Infant.

Count Tolstol thus described one phase of his babyhood: "I am bound. I wish to free my arms, and I cannot do so, and I scream and cry, and my cries are unpleasant to myself, but I cannot cease. They think that it is necessary that I should be bound. Whereas I know it is not necessary, and I wish to prove it to them. I am convulsed with cries distasteful to myself, but unstrainable. I feel the injustice and cruelty, not of human beings, for they pity me, but of fate, and I feel pity for myself, and certain it is that this was my first and most powerful impression in life. Nor is it my cries that are unpleasant upon my mind, nor my sufferings, but the complexity and contrast of the impression. I desire freedom. It interferes with no one else, and I, who require strength, am weak, while they are strong."

Exciting.

Percy—I am tired of this life of ease. I want a life of toil, danger, excitement and adventure!

"Oh, this is so sudden! But you may ask papa."—Life.

Not Exhausted.

She—Henry, I'm going to give you a piece of my mind. He—I thought I'd had it all.—New York Press.

Those who always creep are the only ones that never fall.

He Remembered.

Mrs. Jones—Do you remember that night in June, Henry, when you first asked me to marry you? Mr. Jones—If you refer to that first, last, single, solitary and only occasion upon which I ever asked you to marry me, I do—and you never gave me another chance, either.

ON THE SPIRE.

When James Freeman Clarke was a young man he visited Salisbury, England. Here the beautiful cathedral lifts its spire 404 feet into the air. The spire is topped by a ball, and on the ball stands a cross. From the ground the ball looks like an orange, but its diameter is really greater than a man's height.

Workmen were repairing the spire. Mr. Clarke saw them crawling round the slim steeple in the golden afternoon like bugs on a bean stalk. The impulse came to him to climb the spire and stand on the horizontal beam of the cross. Accordingly at dusk, when the workmen had left, the young American slipped in and made his way up the stairs to the little window which opened to the workmen's staging. To run up the scaffolding to the ball was easy. Then came the slightly more bulging curve of the ball. A short platform gave him foothold. He reached up, put his hands on the base of the cross and pulled himself up. To gain the cross arm was merely "shinning" up a good sized tree, and soon he stood on the horizontal timber and, reaching up, touched the top of the cross.

After enjoying his moment of exaltation he slid to the foot of the cross, and, with his arms round the post, slipped down over the great abdomen of the ball. His feet touched nothing. The little plank from which he had reached up was not there!

Here was a peril and one for a cool head and sure eye. Of course he could not look down. The hugging hold that he had to keep on the bottom of the cross shortened the reach of his body and made it less than when he had stood on the plank and reached up to the cross with his hands. He must drop so that his feet should meet the plank, for he would never be able to pull himself back if he should let himself down at arms' length, and his feet hung over empty air.

Now his good head began to work. He looked up at the cross and tried to recall exactly the angle at which he had reached for it, to make his memory tell him just how the edge of that square post had appeared. A few inches to the right or to the left would mean dropping into vacancy.

Bending his head away back, he strained his eye up the cross and figured his angle of approach. He cautiously wormed himself to the right and made up his mind that here directly under his feet must be the plank. Then he dropped. The world knows that he lived to tell the tale.

Presidential Coincidences.

John Adams was eight years older than his successor, Thomas Jefferson; he eight years older than James Madison; he eight years older than James Monroe; and he eight years older than John Q. Adams. George Washington ended his term as president in his sixty-fifth year, and so, too, did John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe. Thomas Jefferson and John Adams died on the same day, July 4, 1826, exactly fifty years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence. One other president, James Monroe, died on July 4. His death occurred in 1831.

Perfect Features.

In a perfect face every feature should bear a certain proportion to every other feature. The width of the face should be equal to five eyes. The distance between the eyes should be exactly equal to one eye. Another important relation is that between the eyes and the mouth. The width of the eyes should be equal to two-thirds that of the mouth. The nose should be equal in length to the height of the forehead, of a regular shape and precisely defined outline.

Enjoyments.

I have told you of the Spaniard who always put on his spectacles when about to eat cherries that they might look bigger and more tempting. In like manner I make the most of my enjoyments, and, though I do not cast my cares away, I pack them in as little compass as I can and carry them as conveniently as I can for myself and never let them annoy others.—Southey.

She Knew.

"Maria," said Boggles to his wife, with an idea of instructing her in political economy, "do you know what civil service is?"

"Jasper," replied Mrs. Boggles, with memory of recent contact with the cook, "there isn't any."

A Difference in Kicks.

People are queer. If a man's neighbor is kicked by a horse the neighbors are serious and concerned for the injured man's welfare. But if the neighbor is kicked by a mule, the best the neighbors can do for him is to laugh.—Kansas City Journal.

Would Be More Careful.

Heavy Father (violently)—Now, see here, Molly, don't let me catch you and young Dovecot flirting together in the conservatory again. Guileless Daughter (demurely)—No, father, you shan't.—Bystander.

HENRIK IBSEN.

How the Scandinavian Dramatist Impressed an Observer.

William Archer tells how Henrik Ibsen impressed him when he met the Scandinavian dramatist in Rome in 1881: "In gilded an undersized man with very broad shoulders and a large leonine head, wearing a long black frock coat with very broad lapels, on one of which a knot of red ribbon was conspicuous. I knew him at once, but was a little taken aback by his low stature. His natural height was even somewhat diminished by a habit of bending forward slightly from the waist, begotten, no doubt, of short-sightedness and the need to peer into things."

"He moved very slowly and noiselessly, with his hands behind his back—an unobtrusive personality. But there was nothing insignificant about the high and massive forehead, crowned with a mane of (then) iron gray hair, the small and pale but piercing eyes behind the gold rimmed spectacles, or the thin lipped mouth, depressed at the corners into a curve indicative of iron will and set between bushy whiskers of the same dark gray as the hair."

"The most cursory observer could not but recognize power and character in the head, yet one would scarcely have guessed it to be the power of a poet, the character of a prophet. One would rather have supposed one's self face to face with an eminent statesman or diplomatist."

THE GULF OF MEXICO.

America's Mediterranean and Its Promise for the Future.

The gulf of Mexico is a sea 1,000 miles long from the straits of Florida to the harbor of Tampico and 800 miles wide from the mouth of the Mississippi river to the mouth of the Coatzacoalcas.

This Mediterranean of the west is surrounded by countries of extraordinary richness in the fertility of their soil, the geniality of their climates, the vastness and value of their forests and the variety and extent of their mineral endowments.

All these countries, capable of sustaining hundreds of millions of people, are inhabited by nations and races who live under republican forms of government and cherish and maintain free institutions. The northern coast line of this important sea is in the great republic of the United States of North America. The southern half is in the next greatest American republic, that of Mexico, while on the east are the important islands of the West Indies, with Cuba at their head. The region around this most important sea is destined to be far richer, more powerful, and more distinguished in the history and affairs of our globe than were ever those that bordered the ancient Mediterranean of the eastern hemisphere, not even excepting Egypt, Greece and Rome.—New Orleans Picayune.

St. Alban and His Teacher.

By some strange irony St. Alban, the martyred but possibly mythical Roman soldier, whose festival falls on June 22, has quite overshadowed his probably historic instructor, St. Amphibalus, whose anniversary comes on the following day. About Amphibalus we know that he was a native of Caerleon, which the golden legend expresses by dubbing him "a prince's son of Wales in grete araye." He was buried at Redbourne, but "translated" to St. Alban's abbey, where his cup was preserved, "which they of the common sort call St. Affabelle Bolle." In former times children were frequently christened with his name, and Affabelle Partridge was goldsmith to Queen Elizabeth.—Westminster Gazette.

Dunkirk's Fete of Lanterns.

One of the quaintest of the numerous yearly fetes still in honor at Dunkirk is the fete of lanterns, instituted many hundreds of years ago in honor of St. Martin, bishop of Tours, who died in 396, and who was one of the prelates by whose efforts the early inhabitants of these parts were converted to Christianity. As soon as dusk sets in the celebration commences, and all the urchins of the town congregate in the main thoroughfares. Each one bears a paper lantern, some of which are of considerable proportions, being shaped in the form of a ship or a flower. With lanterns in hand and blowing lustily on horns and trumpets, the crowd of youngsters parades the streets.—London News.

Faith Cure Elephants.

The temple elephant in southern India is the object of great respect, for physical contact with him is supposed to do more good to the human body than the best medicine. Adult men and women warily feel his legs with their finger tips and press them reverently to their eyes, and ailing children are for a small consideration carried on his back the distance of a few strides that they may be cured.—Madras Mail.

Greatness is to take the common things of life and walk truly among them.—Schreiner.

SUNDAY TRADING.

Markets and Fairs in Churchyards in Early England.

It may safely be asserted that from the time of the Conqueror (1066-1087) Sunday trading received much attention. In early ages markets and fairs were held on Sundays and frequently in the churchyards.

In 1305 the inhabitants of Cockermonth presented a petition to parliament, as their market was fast declining through the inhabitants of Crosthwaite dealing in corn, flour, beans, flesh, fish, at their church on Sundays and that thereby they were unable to pay their tolls to the king (Edward I.). An order was issued for closing the church market at Crosthwaite.

At Bradford, Yorkshire, during the same reign the market was held on a Sunday, doubtless in the churchyard. The toll yielded £3 per annum.

In 1285 a statute was passed enacting that henceforth neither fairs nor markets be held in churchyards, for the honor of the church.

In 1312 a market was granted to the town of Sedgefield, Durham, to be held on a Friday, but was soon changed to Sunday.

In 1307 the archbishops of Canterbury and York delivered charges directing, among other things, that "we firmly forbid any one to keep a market in the churches, the porches and the cemeteries thereunto belonging or other holy places on the Lord's day or other holy festivals."—Notes and Queries.

BLUE PAPER.

The Process of Making It Discovered by an Accident.

"A woman," said a paper maker, "invented blue paper. It was by accident that she did it though. Before her time all paper was white."

"She was the wife of William Eastes, one of the leading paper makers of England in the eighteenth century. In passing through the paper plant one day she dropped a big blue bag into a vat of pulp. Eastes was a stern chap, and so, since no one had seen the accident, Mrs. Eastes decided to say nothing about it."

"The paper in the vat, which should have been white, came out blue. The workmen were mystified, Eastes enraged. Mrs. Eastes kept quiet. The upshot was that the paper was sent to London, marked 'damaged,' to be sold for whatever it would bring."

"But the selling agent in London was shrewd. He saw that this blue tinted paper was attractive. He declared it to be a wonderful new invention, and he sold it off like hot cakes at double the white paper's price."

"Eastes soon received an order for more of the blue paper—an order that he and his men wasted several days in trying to valuably fill."

"Then Mrs. Eastes came forward and told the story of the blue cloth bag. There was no difficulty after that in making the blue paper. This paper's price remained very high, the Eastes having a monopoly in it."

SOME FIRST OCCASIONS.

The first canal was made in England when Henry I. joined the Trent to the Witham, in 1134.
Quill pens came into use in 553; the first steel ones in 1820, when the first gross of them sold for $30.
The first pocket handkerchiefs, utilized in the manner they are today, were manufactured at Paisley in 1743.
From the press of the celebrated Wynken de Worde, the first book containing musical characters was issued in 1495.
The first coins were struck in brass about 1184 B. C. and in gold and silver by Pheldon, tyrant of Argos, about 862 B. C.
About 70 A. D. the first glass bottle was made by the Romans, although the manufacture was not taken up in England until 1558.
Movable scenery was first used in theaters in 1508. It was invented by Baldassare Peruzzi and displayed in Rome before Leo X.
Pliny's "Natural History" may be regarded as the first encyclopedia, since it contained 30,000 facts compiled from 2,000 books by 100 authors.
Declined Her Own Medicine.
There is always more or less talk current about abolishing position and dispersing pelf. The trouble is to know just where to begin the destructive reconstruction and to find reformers who are willing themselves to be reformed. An English great lady was once entertaining the labor member of parliament, Henry Broadhurst, the Duke of Argyll and others at her country seat. She was a strong Liberal, and one evening inveighed against the house of lords. It would be swept away if it did not reform, she said with fervor.
"Yes," agreed Broadhurst, "and how will you like that, Mrs. P?"
"Lady P., if you please, sir," instantly corrected Broadhurst's hostess, drawing herself up haughtily.

A River of Death.

Before the English occupation of India it was estimated that the Ganges carried to the sea every year 1,000,000 dead bodies. It was then considered by the Hindoos that the happiest death was one found in its waves, and all pious Hindoos who could do so were carried to its banks and placed in its waters to die. The decaying carcasses along its banks were probably responsible in no small degree for the pestilences which formerly desolated the peninsula.

Hard Work.

Mrs. A.—I'm surprised that your husband earns so little if he works as hard as you say. What does he do?
Mrs. B.—The last thing he did was to calculate how many times a clock ticked in the course of 1,000 years.—London Tit-Bits.

The Hero.

"It must be nice to be a hero," remarked the quiet man.
"It is for a minute," replied Senator Badger. "After that the hero wonders at the world's bad memory."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Rough on the Count.

Lord Freelunch—Ah, count, did you make a favorable impression on the father of the heiress? Count Broken—Favorable! Why, when I told him I was looking for his daughter's hand he said he thought I was looking for a haudout.—Chicago News.

A Better Match.

Briggs—That was a narrow escape Bildergate had, wasn't it? You know he was just about to marry a girl when he found that she spent $2,500 a year on her dresses. Griggs—Yes, but he's married all the same. Briggs—True, but he didn't marry that girl. Griggs—He didn't! Who did he marry, then? Briggs—Her dressmaker.—London Mail.

A carefully greased needle will float upon water, though, of course, the steel is much heavier than a similar bulk of water.

Remarrying.

"Do widows or widowers remarry?" said the reporter.
"Widows, widows decidedly," the minister answered.
"And how do you account for that fact?"
"I account for it on the monetary rather than on sentimental grounds. Widows remarry oftener than widowers. They are alone, and they may have a child or two, and all the money they can call their own is a life insurance policy for $1,200 or $1,500. So they remarry. They remarry speedily. With much wisdom acquired from their first marital experience they have no difficulty in persuading some prosperous and steady young man to set them afloat upon a second matrimonial voyage. Widowers are most apt to remain single if they have children. Eight out of ten of the widowers whom I remarry are childless men."

Talking Shorthand.

Through the courtesy of the navy department several distinguished naval experts from Russia were, together with the embassy's naval attaché, conducted through the Washington navy yard's gun shop.

The party was in charge of an American naval officer, who had told off for the service a couple of Irish employees of the yard needed to move certain pieces of ordnance.

As they passed through the various departments the Russians occasionally conversed with each other in their native tongue, a circumstance which the quick Irishmen at once noted with interest. At last one of the workmen could no longer conceal his curiosity. Nudging his fellow workman, he said, "Mike, can ye understand anything those fellows is saying?"
"Of course not," responded the other. "They're sp'aking in shorthand."

His Wealth.

Magistrate—You were begging in the public streets, and yet you had fifteen shillings in your pocket. Prisoner—Yes, your worship. I may not be as industrious as some, but I'm no spend-thrift.—London Express.

Time appears long only to those who don't know how to use it.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address:

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Sander, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable and weakening drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind, it is not a patent nor even a secret medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated physician, of large experience in the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for woman's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.
